Magnificent staff across the nation are desperate to help millions of children get back to the classroom – but militant unions are standing in their way. To them, the Mail implores...

LET OUR TEACHERS BE HEROES

By Jason Groves and Josh White

THE row between teachers and unions over when and how to reopen our schools exploded last night. In an extraordinary intervention, former education secretary David Blunkett accused the unions of 'wrecking' against the interests of children by continuing to obstruct

THE great consolation of this Covid crisis has been Britons bonding together in a spirit of compassion and generosity. So what a crushing disappointment that our teaching unions refuse to join the common cause, instead playing petty politics. They are obviously happy to gamble with children's teachers, who are desperate to get back into the classroom. And, given 20 years of government cuts, 20 years of government indifference, why should they be? Writing for the Daily Mail, we need to look at the interests of those who are most affected by this crisis – the children of those who are most affected. The unions should know where their duty lies. We urge them to find their voice.
